EQUAL JUSTICE INITIATIVE

SHOULD WE COMFORT
THE CONDEMNED?

SHOULD WE AID
ACCUSED?

More than 3300 people in the United States are awaiting execution.*

SHOULD WE EXECUTE THE CONVICTED?

SHOULD WE SENTENCE CHILDREN TO DIE IN PRISON?

and runs to his mother in court*

ARE SOME PEOPLE
PUNISHED
TOO SEVERELY?

The United States has the highest rate of incarceration in the world.*

SHOULD WE PROTECT INCARCERATED CHILDREN?

A 15-year-old boy is sentenced to life imprisonment in an adult prison, where he will soon be the victim of repeated sexual assaults. Children sent to adult prison face a risk of sexual victimization up to ten times higher than the risk for adults.

ARE WE MORE THAN THE WORST THING
WE'VE EVER DONE?

"Criminal," "Murderer," "Rapist," "Thief," "Drug Dealer," "Sex Offender," and "Felon" have become complete and permanent identities that hundreds of thousands of children and adults will never be allowed to overcome.

WILL WE OVERCOME OUR HISTORY?

The Equal Justice Initiative (EJI) is a nonprofit human rights organization that provides legal assistance to condemned prisoners, children in the criminal justice system, people wrongly convicted or sentenced, and the poor and vulnerable facing imprisonment.

We advocate for hopeful solutions to the violence, powerlessness, and despair that plague marginalized communities.

EJI trains and assists lawyers, students, community leaders, and low-income communities to improve access to justice.

We issue research reports and materials to educate the public and increase awareness of problems related to criminal justice, race, and poverty.

We believe that equal justice is a right and that the protection of every person's civil and human rights is essential to a fair and just society.

We challenge excessive and abusive punishments imposed on children across the United States and work on large reform projects confronting racial injustice and economic inequality.

We are committed to challenging violence against incarcerated individuals, abuse of power by correctional officers, unsafe prison conditions, mistreatment of mentally ill inmates, and illegal detention of the poor.

There is a tremendous need for more hopeful and just solutions to poverty, over-incarceration, and excessive punishment. EJI is committed to advocacy that promotes the basic dignity of every human being and recognizes the value of justice and mercy.

EJI is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization.
